Paying Expense Reimbursements in Your Pay Check

Simplifying Expense Reimbursements
The University is streamlining the process for paying employee reimbursements to employees. Effective Friday, October 16, 2009, expense reimbursements will be included in your biweekly pay check rather than in a separate check. The benefits include:

- If you have payroll direct deposit, electronically depositing your reimbursement. (This will automatically post to your bank account based on your set percentage breakout; or if your deposit is split by $ amount, it will go to the last account you have designated)
- Providing detailed information about your reimbursement in the expense module
- “Going Green!” by reducing the paper and mailing resources required to process reimbursements
- Eliminating the inconvenience of depositing a separate check
- Eliminating uncashed checks, address problems and stop payments

The Paycheck/Pay Advice: Where to Find Your Expense Reimbursement
Your expense reimbursement will appear in the Hours and Earnings section (see image below). The reimbursement may appear as “Reimbursement/Advance” or “Emp Reimbursement Taxable” depending on the taxable status of the reimbursement. You will see the amount of the reimbursement/advance in the “Current” Earnings column.
