The permanent record kept in the Office of the University Registrar for each student will certify the award of degree and carry his or her grades, averages, and honors (if any). At commencement, students graduating with distinction are noted only if that distinction has been earned at the end of the previous semester.

The names appearing in the Commencement Program represent an unofficial listing of candidates.

UMass Dartmouth Mission

UMass Dartmouth distinguishes itself as a vibrant, public research university dedicated to engaged learning and innovative research resulting in personal and lifelong student success. The University serves as an intellectual catalyst for economic, social, and cultural transformation on a global, national, and regional scale.

UMass Dartmouth Vision

UMass Dartmouth will be a globally recognized premier research university committed to inclusion, access, advancement of knowledge, student success, and community enrichment.

The University of Massachusetts is committed to a policy of equal opportunity without regard to race, color, religion, gender, gender identity or expression, age, sexual orientation, national origin, ancestry, disability, military status, or genetic information in employment, admission to, and participation in academic programs, activities, and services, and the selection of vendors who provide services or products to the University.

Academic Regalia

The University of Massachusetts Dartmouth and other contemporary institutions of higher learning evolved historically from the great medieval universities in Europe such as those in Bologna, founded in 1088, Oxford in 1167, and Cambridge in 1209.

Originally, the university was a guild of Masters of Arts, and the degree was the token that full membership had been attained. Even as, after “serving his time,” an apprentice was licensed to practice his trade or “master,” so the Master of Arts was certified by his superiors and admitted to the practice of instruction and, therefore, the ceremony marking the occasion was known as “Commencement.”

The term “Bachelor” originally designated a man who was assistant to a small landowner and in medieval times denoted the apprentice as opposed to the master workman. It is uncertain when the title of “Doctor” was established as a degree superior to that of “Master,” but at Bologna it was conferred in Law in the twelfth century, and Paris awarded the degree in Divinity about the same time. There is mention of the “Doctors of the different Faculties” at Oxford in 1184, so that the term was evidently used as a title for those possessing the highest degree of learning soon after the establishment of the first universities.

At that time, everyone—men and women, royalty and commoners—wore gowns; that is, long, full-flowing robes, and the king himself decreed what quality apparel might be worn by whom. After about 1600 they were rarely worn by men other than legal and official personages.

The hood first appeared as a separate article of attire in the thirteenth century, but by 1600 it, like the gown, ceased to be worn at all except by legal, official, academic, and clerical personages.

During the early years of the medieval universities, scholars wore the same general type of clothing as everyone else: gowns, cloaks with hoods attached, or separate hoods and caps. After a while, details of scholars’ apparel were prescribed by university statutes to distinguish the faculties as well as the different degrees of learning. When the fashions of the people changed, scholars kept the original styles both because they were prescribed by university statutes and “because it is honourable and in accordance with reason that clerks to whom God has given an advantage over the lay folk in their adornments within, should likewise differ from the lay folk outwardly in dress.”

In today’s academic procession, the regalia not only contribute pageantry and color, but denote the academic status of their wearers. The cap, or mortarboard, is worn by all academics upon occasion; but only those who hold an academic degree wear the tassel to their left, and only those who hold the Doctor’s degree are permitted tassels of gold.

Gowns are of three basic patterns: (a) the Bachelor’s gown, of unadorned black and with long pointed sleeves; (b) the Master’s gown, unadorned black but with an oblong sleeve, open at the wrist, square cut with an arc cut away; and (c) the Doctor’s gown, velvet-faced, with bell-shaped sleeves and bars of velvet on each sleeve.

Hoods are of two shapes and lengths, also corresponding to the degree held by the wearer. Their binding or trim is colored to indicate the department or faculty to which the degree pertains, while the lining is decorated in the colors and arrangement characteristic of the institution which awarded the degree.

It should be noted that some institutions depart to a lesser or greater degree from these general rules in the design and execution of their academic regalia.

The Chancellor’s Chain of Office

The Chancellor’s Chain of Office, designed and created by College of Visual and Performing Arts faculty, reflects the rich history of the University of Massachusetts Dartmouth as well as the current array of its diverse Schools and Colleges. Visually inspired by campus architect Paul Rudolph’s original vision, the Chain of Office incorporates modern contemporary lines echoing the University’s commitment to the future.

The official University seal, the seals of the University’s predecessor institutions, and emblems of the eight existing Schools and Colleges are represented in the medals comprising the chain, which was created of cast bronze and plated in 24-karat gold.

Professors Alan Burton Thompson and Susan Hamlet of the Artisanry Department combined cutting edge computer technology and the oldest of technologies, the hand, to create the chain, which was constructed of more than 60 individual pieces. Full-time Lecturer Charlotte Hamlin of the Textile Design/Fiber Arts program fashioned the blue velvet backing. Full-time Lecturer Reuben Foat of Artisanry’s Furniture Design program assisted in the production process.

The 3-D design software and printer used to create the chain was recently purchased for the College and is now being used to teach digital fabrication classes to undergraduate and graduate students.

The Mace

The mace, once a terrible instrument of medieval close combat, has come to symbolize the power and authority of an appointed or anointed leader. Many universities, eager to engage in the medieval pageantry reflecting the origins of our earliest universities, have adapted the mace as a ceremonial staff borne at the head of processions traditionally marking the beginning of convocation and commencement.

The University of Massachusetts Dartmouth Mace, created by Richard Creighton, Professor of Fine Arts, is the gift of the late Vice Chancellor for Student Services Emeritus, Celestino Macedo, and the late Special Assistant to the President, Norman Zalkind LHD ’81.

Undergraduate Commencement

Please see pages 18–37 for the order of exercises, honorees, speakers, and list of graduates.

Commencement

The Commencement ceremony represents the culmination of years of hard work for students who are receiving degrees.

During the Commencement, the name of each graduate is read. The degrees are conferred after all names have been read. Please do not detract from the dignity of the ceremony and the enjoyment of other participants and their guests by leaving before the ceremony is completed.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, students, families, faculty, and friends of each college/school are invited to gather for photographs at designated areas. See page 38 for details.

Honorees

Cecilia Conrad / Doctor of Humane Letters, Honoris Causa / Commencement Address Managing Director, MacArthur Foundation

Cecilia Conrad leads the MacArthur Fellows Program, the MacArthur Awards for Creative and Effective Institutions, and 100&Change, the MacArthur Foundation's competition for a single $100 million grant to help solve a critical problem of our time.

Before joining the Foundation in January 2013, Dr. Conrad had a distinguished career as both a professor and an administrator at Pomona College, Claremont, CA. She joined the economics faculty at Pomona College in 1995. She served as Associate Dean of the College (2004–2007), as Vice President for Academic Affairs and Dean of the College (2009–2012), and as Acting President (Fall 2012). From 2007–2009, she was interim Vice President and Dean of the Faculty at Scripps College.

In 2002, Dr. Conrad was recognized as California's Carnegie Professor of the Year, a prestigious national award that recognizes faculty members for their achievement as undergraduate professors. Her academic research focuses on the effects of race and gender on economic status.

Before joining the faculty at Pomona College, Dr. Conrad served on the faculties of Barnard College and Duke University, as an economist at the Federal Trade Commission, and as a visiting scholar at The Joint Center for Political and Economic Studies.

Michael Savaria '17 / Graduate Student Address College of Arts & Sciences

Michael Savaria is receiving a doctoral degree in educational leadership and policy studies today, his fourth degree earned from the University of Massachusetts Dartmouth. He has previously earned a master's degree in educational leadership and policy studies in 2015, a master's degree in marine biology in 2013, and a bachelor's degree in biology in 2010. Mr. Savaria's research has focused on creating equal educational opportunities for all individuals, identifying pedagogical methods and administrative policies to increase the recruitment and retention of women and other groups in science, technology, engineering, and mathematics (STEM) college majors.

On campus, Mr. Savaria has held positions as the Vice President of the Graduate Student Senate, Graduate Teaching Assistant, Veterans Upward Bound Instructor, Graduate Tutor at the Writing and Reading Center, and as an International Student Orientation Leader. Mr. Savaria has presented at 16 research conferences, been the primary author of two peer-reviewed journal articles, and was recently named the recipient of the UMass Dartmouth Young Alumni Award.

Mr. Savaria resides in Westport, Massachusetts and plans to move full-time into academia to continue his research and work to advance greater student engagement and advocacy.

Jennifer Finney Boylan / Chancellor's Medal Author and activist

Jennifer Finney Boylan is the author of 15 books and currently serves as the inaugural Anna Quindlen Writer in Residence at Barnard College of Columbia University. She also serves as the national co-chair of the Board of Directors of GLAAD, the media advocacy group for LGBT people worldwide.

Dr. Boylan has been a contributor to the op/ed page of the New York Times since 2007. She became Contributing Opinion Writer for the page in 2013.

Dr. Boylan serves on the Board of Trustees of the Kinsey Institute for Research on Sex, Gender, and Reproduction. She is a consultant and cast member for I Am Cait, the docu-series about Caitlyn Jenner that debuted on the E! Network in July 2015. She also served as a consultant to the Amazon series Transparent.

Dr. Boylan's 2003 memoir, She's Not There: a Life in Two Genders, was the first bestselling work by a transgender American. A novelist, memoirist, and short story writer, she is also a nationally known advocate for civil rights.

She lives in New York City, and in Belgrade Lakes, Maine, with her wife, Deedie, and her two sons, Zach and Sean.

Nina Totenberg / Doctor of Humane Letters, Honoris Causa / Commencement Address

Legal Correspondent, National Public Radio

Nina Totenberg is an award-winning legal affairs correspondent for National Public Radio. Her reports air regularly on NPR's critically acclaimed newsmagazines All Things Considered, Morning Edition, and Weekend Edition.

Ms. Totenberg's coverage of the Supreme Court and legal affairs has won her widespread recognition. Newsweek says, "The mainstays [of NPR] are Morning Edition and All Things Considered. But the creme de la creme is Nina Totenberg."

In 1991, her ground-breaking report about University of Oklahoma Law Professor Anita Hill's allegations of sexual harassment by Judge Clarence Thomas led the Senate Judiciary Committee to re-open Thomas's Supreme Court confirmation hearings to consider Hill's charges. NPR received the prestigious George Foster Peabody Award for its gavel-to-gavel coverage—anchored by Ms. Totenberg—of both the original hearings and the inquiry into the issue, and for Ms. Totenberg's reports and exclusive interview with Hill.

Before joining NPR in 1975, Ms. Totenberg served as Washington editor of New Times Magazine, and as the legal affairs correspondent for the National Observer.

Brandi Bass '17 / Student Address

College of Arts & Sciences

Brandi Bass is receiving a bachelor's degree in psychology with a minor in business administration today. She has been deeply involved in campus life. She has served as a Peer Mentor for the Center for Access and Success, Admissions Ambassador, President and Founder of HERO (Helping Each Other Rise Organization), Student Government Association Senator for the College of Arts and Sciences, Public Relations Officer for the Resident Student Association, member of CARE (Creating Acceptance Through Relationships and Empowerment), member of Share Esperanza, Leduc Center for Civic Engagement Volunteer, and member of the International Psi Chi Psychology Honor Society.

Ms. Bass has been accepted to AETNA Incorporated's General Management Development Program, accelerating her career development. Through three, 18-month experiences throughout Aetna's core businesses in three different states, Ms. Bass will be positioned to become a future leader for the company. Ms. Bass's hometown is Springfield, Massachusetts.

Pete Souza / Chancellor's Medal

Chief Official White House Photographer, 2009–2017

Pete Souza, a native of Dartmouth, Massachusetts, served as the Chief Official White House Photographer and the Director of the White House Photo Office during the presidency of Barack Obama. He had also served as Official White House Photographer for President Ronald Reagan.

Prior to serving as President Obama's official photographer, Mr. Souza had served as Assistant Professor of Photojournalism at Ohio University, national photographer for the Chicago Tribune based in the Washington bureau, and freelancer for National Geographic.

Several of Mr. Souza's books document his intimate, humanizing photographs of his time with President Obama and President Reagan.

He has won numerous photojournalism awards, including several in the prestigious National Press Photographer Association's Pictures of the Year annual competition, and the White House News Photographers Association's yearly contest.
