

Dr Jha is Associate Professor in Computational Linguistics at Associate Professor, Computational Linguistics at Special Center for Sanskrit Studies, J.N.U., New Delhi. He also holds the Mukesh and Priti Chatter Distinguished Professorship at the Center of Indic Studies University of Massachusetts Dartmouth. Dr Jha's research interests include Indian languages corpora and standards, Sanskrit and Hindi linguistics, Science & Technology in Sanskrit texts, Computational Lexicography, Machine Translation, e-learning, web based technologies, RDBMS techniques, software design and localization. He is running key language technology projects and is heading a consortium of Indian universities/institutes to build computer solutions for Indian languages. Dr Jha has several publications and consultancies, and is represented in key national/international committees. The further details on him can be obtained from <http://www.jnu.ac.in/faculty/gnjha/>