

Jonathan Blake Waxler Memorial Prize for Social Justice

Nominations and self-nominations are invited for the Jonathan Blake Waxler Memorial Prize for Social Justice.

The Jonathan Blake Waxler Memorial Prize for Social Justice was established in 1996 to honor the memory of the beloved son of UMassD English professor, Robert Waxler, and his wife, Linda. The $500 annual prize recognizes a student who has exhibited a dedication to social activism, advocacy, community organizing, or civic engagement as a way of enhancing the dignity of all people. The spirit of the prize is founded on Jonathan's belief and vision for a democratic society and his commitment to social justice, especially for those less fortunate than himself.

The prize is open to a student who, within the preceding 12 months, identified an issue on campus or in the community related to enhancing the possibility of justice and equality for everyone and worked to make this possibility into a reality through social activism, community organizing, advocacy, or civic engagement.
